Open The Way For Schools

In little more than a month the final pressures will begin to bear down on Congress. If we are going to get a vitally needed school aid bill, the moment for action is at hand.

The administration's proposal, now pending on Capitol Hill, calls for an outlay of $1,600,000,000 for construction of schools throughout the nation.

Delay beyond this session will only magnify the school shortage. We need hundreds of thousands of additional classrooms in the next few years. Nearly 8,700 school districts in America have no schools at all.

The roadblock standing athwart the path of the measure is, of course, the so-called "integration" amendment proposed by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, New York Democrat. He would deny school construction aid to those states which do not act to comply with the Supreme Court's 1954 decision banning racial segregation in public schools.

It should be noted that temperate, responsible leaders in both north and south counsel against any course of compulsion on this issue. The Powell amendment is clearly punitive in intent. It thus runs counter to the moderate thinking found today in the highest circles of both major parties.

Furthermore, since the bill with that attachment has utterly no chance of final passage, its real effect is to penalize American school children all over the land for a matter not of their own making.

The day hardly goes by when we do not hear fresh comparisons, most of them painful, between the schooling we are providing our young and that which the Soviet Union is affording.

Failure to solve this problem in America is not only tragic because it can curb the usefulness and rounded development of our future citizens; it is dangerous to national security, which depends more and more on men and women trained in the techniques of science and engineering.

Not even the Supreme Court itself has demanded the kind of speed in desegregation which the Powell amendment would seek to enforce. His proposal represents a shallow approach to a problem of the utmost gravity, and it could be tremendously costly to many young Americans.

Up to now neither administration lieutenants nor top Democrats in Congress have figured how to break past the Powell barrier and get the needed school bill enacted into law. But it is fair to ask that they redouble their efforts to find a way.

If heavy pressure from the administration is called for, then let us have it. If a public outcry at the present inadequacy, is needed, let us have that, too.

The need is clear and urgent. A majority in Congress is willing to endorse aid to meet the need. There is not much ingenuity left in Washington if a means cannot be devised to remove the obstacle to that action.

No, Medicine Hasn't Yet Discovered a 'Youth Pill'

RY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

All of us, I suppose, would like a formula for retaining everlasting youth. Some people will grasp at any means by which they think they can postpone the effects of the passage of time.

Thus, it isn't surprising that I am often asked by middle-aged men if there is any value in taking male hormones.

MALE HORMONES have their place but there is little reason to believe that taking them will delay signs of the passing of years. It is true that the male sex glands produce hormones which are absorbed into the system. These hormones contribute to the vigor of the peak years of life. But hormone production keeps up for many years. Generally the origin of lessened energy in the middle years should be sought elsewhere.

Actually, scientific opinion is greatly divided on whether there is any period in the life of men in which the manufacture of hormones is decreased enough to lead to a change of life similar to that which occurs in women.

A few develop feelings of tension or other vague disturbances which are sometimes thought to be caused by decreased hormone production. But such signs also can come from a lot of other things.

It is APPARENT from correspondence that most men are more interested in the hormone problem from the standpoint of impotence than from any other youthful characteristic.

It is certainly the general belief that hormone injections will not affect potency. It is possible that this activity—or failure of it—has a definite physical cause though more commonly the mental (or perhaps one should say emotional) aspects are considered much more important than the physical.

Taking pills or "shots" of male hormones will not preserve the bloom of youth.

When an adult behaves like a juvenile, we simply call him adolescent. But when a juvenile acts like some adult he sees, we call him a delinquent.

A cease-fire and what happens weeks or months after a cease-fire is a little like stopping a motor. You know that immediately after stopping a motor, its temperature rises.

—Dag Hammarskjöld, U.N. secretary-general, returns from Middle East peace mission.

We might as well all go fishing this November if the Democratic party deviates from the stand it took on civil rights in 1948 and 1952.

—Gov. Averell Harriman of N.Y.

God and I are tired of men taking advantage of women. I realized he was like all other men—rotten to the core. I thought I'd do the world a favor.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—What the Army, Navy and Air Force are suffering from is not so much military indigestion as it is nearsightedness from trying to peer into the future.

The feuding among the three services is over the role each thinks it should have in national defense and future war. But the phenomenal development of new weapons may make present conceptions of modern war obsolete.

Missile development is the prime example.

The Army now has the job of guarding key points in the United States from air attack with the Nike missile, which has a range of about 25 miles. The Army is developing one with longer range.

But the Air Force, which has the job of protecting the whole country from air attack, is pushing a missile of its own, the Navy-developed Talos, with a range longer than the Nike's.

What does the future hold? Missiles so accurate and long-range that they can substitute for planes in defending the country? If so who handles them, the Army or the Air Force?

Or will even this idea of national defense shortly be out of date with the development of intercontinental missiles so accurate and devastating that an attack by plane would become obsolete?

Who would handle the defense against these missiles, Army or Air Force?

And what will the Navy's role be? It's pushing a big carrier program. This is the thinking behind that: That its carrier-based bombers could attack any target on earth since each carrier would be a movable air base.

But some Air Force officers downgrade the importance of carrier strikes against an enemy with this argument: Enemy planes with radar could spot the carriers 400 miles away and knock them off like ducks with missiles. The Navy replied that the carriers wouldn't stay long in one place.

One further point in the inter-service argument: What happens if the United States and Russia develop such powerful bombers or intercontinental missiles, with nuclear weapons attached, that neither dares to start a war on the other?

What then happens to the huge air forces if little wars start but the big powers don't want them to become big wars? Army people claim they'll have to do the fighting.

The Eisenhower administration has whittled down the army while throwing more money into the Air Force and the Navy. This was done in accordance with what the President thinks right now although it may not be permanently right.

It's no wonder Secretary of Defense Wilson, who as boss of the three services has to look at national defense from the overall viewpoint, recently told a news conference:

The main task now is to develop the best missiles we can. Afterwards we can decide on roles and missions. Meaning: What branch of the armed forces does what.

Thinking It Over—

By Robert L. Diefenbacher, D.D.

The courts throughout the nation are filled with cases of disagreement. The great majority of disagreements result from misunderstandings, from lack of factual information or from the emotional dramatization of trivial and insignificant incidents.

Frequently an innocent statement is misinterpreted and a thoughtless answer is given. A reply is returned in anger and, before long, a real argument has developed. The original statement is completely forgotten and the unrelated matter becomes serious.

Important differences of opinion are resolved by discussion, by compromise or by arbitration. Little misunderstandings are not faced clearly. They are allowed to grow and take on imaginary significance.

Divorces, neighborhood battles and even international wars develop from trivia which could have been solved with patience and study of facts. But the trivia must be faced before involvements begin to pile up.

Many a disagreement would vanish into thin air if we were merely to see the viewpoints of the other person. Both parties involved in a difference of opinion are so limited in their viewpoints that they are not willing to consider any side but their own. They shut their eyes to simple facts.

Religion never teaches us to surrender our moral convictions, but it does require man to rise above self-belligerence and give consideration to others. It does teach us to love instead of hate.

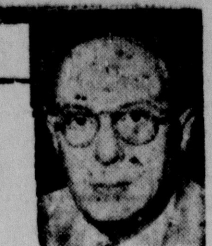

"Let not the sun go down upon your wrath."

John L. Lewis Pays Tribute To Mediator Cyrus S. Ching

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—A "Four Hundred" of industrial relations—big business tycoons, big labor barons, big government officials and their wives—dined in formal and threw a whirling-ding of a dinner to celebrate the 80th birthday of six-foot, seven-inch Cyrus S. Ching, Ching saw action as former head of the U. S. Mediation and Conciliation Service in many a battle.

They all paid tribute to the gentleness and integrity of this beloved giant. And in return Cyrus Ching said simply: "I am the richest man in the world—and cannot be taxed for it. For these are my friends."

The highlight of this tripartite labor-management-government love feast, however, was the testimonial of John L. Lewis, Missing was the scowl of the United Mine Workers head, now white-haired and 76, himself. But his characteristic oratory was never better. It was a classic that went something like this:

"I Look Back on my years of association with Cyrus Ching as filled with trials and tribulations not of his making. There were a few disputes.

"In one of them, Mr. Ching called in Col. Clyde Mills and other Labor Department practitioners. I came, in line with my traditional policy of going whenever summoned by my government.

"Mr. Ching filled his pipe and eventually he got it burning. He said the government needed coal.

"I said the government didn't need coal. It had plenty.

"Mr. Ching said the government was entitled to as much coal as it thought it needed, and the strike must end.

"I said there was no strike. Just a period of stabilizing inaction. Mr. Ching became so agitated that he filled his pipe again.

"George M. Humphrey, our Secretary of the Treasury sitting here in the audience, then believed that taxes should be lowered without reference to a balanced budget.

"At the time he was strong-manning it around the coal industry. Quoting the Chinese poet Lin-Po, I said there is one grape I want to trample a little wine out of, and that is George Humphrey.

"Mr. Ching said if the strike was not abated, the government would seize the mines. It was too much. I had canvassed the situation and I could not remember any coal mines that the union owned. But if the government seized the mines, George Humphrey's mines would be included.

"In the middle of these negotiations, Mr. Ching got a telegram. He held it up to the strong light behind him and I could read the words. It said:

"BET TWO DOLLARS ON HOT STUFF FOURTH RACE PIMLICO. 'I thought it was a code message. 'I Left This Meeting in great disappointment. But as I painfully wended my way back to my office I stopped at a telephone and bet $2 on Hot Stuff.

"I had been in Judge Goldsborough's court recently and didn't have much money. I thought $2 would come in handy. But Hot Stuff came in third. It was an obvious plant.

"I have played me like a violin. I have been his instrument on his march to fame. I have added to his glory, though adding to his stature would be difficult.

"And just to prove my broadness of mind and forgiving spirit, I'll say that if the Republican party will undertake to be right for just one time and will nominate George Humphrey for president and Cyrus Ching for vice president, I'll vote for them—with one provision. They must change the name of the vice president's dog from Checkers to Chess."

"I said there was no strike. Just a period of stabilizing inaction. Mr. Ching became so agitated that he filled his pipe again.

Boyle's Column

SYLVIA, N. C. (AP)—Many men who dream a big dream and make it come true learn to their surprise that it isn't what they really wanted after all.

But what can they do? Most remain embittered prisoners of a phantom success they no longer enjoy but are afraid to give up.

It takes a good man to give up his hard-won position at the peak and fight back down the rocky road he has traveled in order to regain something finer he lost earlier on the way up.

Such a man is John Parris, the only reporter I can name offhand who covers his beat in his own Cadillac.

John's ancestors journeyed from the coastal plain into the mountains of western North Carolina along rude horse and oxen paths shortly after the American Revolution, and the family has put its roots down pretty deep here since then.

But John, who became a reporter at 13 and never encountered his mind with college lumber, got yearning for the far places. Like most small town newspapermen, he dreamed of becoming a top byline writer in the big city.

He did. Before he was 23 he was writing daily feature articles out of New York for a news agency.

But more distant fields called. John went to London during the blitz raids. He landed as a war correspondent with the initial Allied forces that invaded Africa on Nov. 8, 1942.

After the war, John returned to New York, became a diplomatic correspondent for The Associated Press and covered the birth and development of the United Nations. He scored a number of notable beats. Covering the home burg hat set and its intrigues was heady, exciting, important. Yet something, he didn't know what, was missing.

In 1946 he met and within five weeks married Dorothy Luxton, a pretty art teacher from Topeka, Kan. But he had the forethought to tell her when he proposed:

"Honey, you may have to learn to use a double-bitted ax to cut up wood to keep a fire going."

Soon after, his father, a jeweler here, died, and John took a leave of absence to come down and settle the estate.

"Almost as soon as I got here," he recalled, "I realized what was missing in my life. It was a kind of happiness I had known in the hills, and hadn't been able to find anywhere else."

It took a lot of courage for John to resign his job as a diplomatic correspondent at the United Nations and start his career all over in his old home town. It took a lot of understanding on his wife's part to back him. But she did.

It wasn't easy. John spent two years on a novel that didn't quite come off, but, as he says, "may yet."

But in 1950 he began promoting "Unto These Hills," a pioneer outdoor drama of the Cherokee Indians that this year may draw its millionth spectator. On top of this and some magazine writing chores, John started writing a column called "Roaming the Hills" for the Asheville Citizen.

It spread faster than the rhododendron does in June. A book of his collected vignettes of mountain people and old mountain customs recently sold out a first edition printing of 10,000 copies in a few weeks. More books are in prospect.

Everywhere John goes in the mountains he is recognized and welcomed. He purrs his Cadillac 200 to 300 miles on an average day, and may ride through four rainbows. He never drove through a single rainbow on his way to work at the United Nations.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Who says that beauty contest winners never succeed in Hollywood? Nobody has a brighter future here than Miss Kansas of 1948.

Her name is Vera Miles, and she's the pride of Wichita. Her home town will be more proud of her as time goes on, because she's destined for the top rung in Hollywood.

How can you tell? It's easy. She is tied up for three pictures a year by hit-maker Alfred Hitchcock. She is also committed to a picture yearly for C. V. Whitney Co. meaning she'll work for another hit-maker, John Ford.

It will be remembered that the last female star Hitchcock developed was a girl named Grace Kelly. Indeed, Vera seems destined to be compared with Mrs. Grimaldi.

"I don't enjoy it, though there is little I can do about it," Vera said. "Although we're both blondes—Grace is lighter-haired than I am—we're not the least bit alike."

That appears to be true. Both have an all-American kind of beauty, but their personalities are entirely different. While Grace was cool and aloof, Vera is down-to-earth and friendly.

Vera smiled as she thought of one similarity: "I married the king of the jungle and she married the Prince of Monaco." She referred to her husband, Gordon Scott, the current screen Tarzan.

Institutes For Parents Of Blind, Deaf Children To Be Held In June

Deaf, blind and crippled pre-school age children of Illinois and their parents will be guests of the state at three annual institutes in June. Dates and places of the institutes were announced Tuesday by Dr. Otto L. Bettag, director of the Illinois Department of Public Welfare. They are:

Illinois School for the Deaf, Jacksonville, June 5 through 15; Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School, Jacksonville, June 8 through 13; Illinois Children's Hospital-School, Chicago, June 15 through 20.

"The purpose of the institutes is to reach severely handicapped children and their parents at the earliest practicable point in the child's life, in order to help both children and parents face their unusual problems with faith, hope and courage," Dr. Bettag said. "We now know that even severely handicapped children can be educated and trained to lead full and useful lives, and the sooner a start is made the better are the chances for success."

Though enrollment is nearly complete, provision can still be made for a few additional children and accompanying parents, Dr. Bettag said. Application may be made by writing to the Illinois Department of Public Welfare, State Office Building, Springfield, or by communicating with any of the department's six regional offices located in Chicago, Rockford, Peoria, Springfield, Champaign or Carbondale.

Room And Board Free
Room, board and tuition at each of the three institutes are free for both children and parents, leaving the cost of travel to any from Jacksonville or Chicago as the major expense for the families, Dr. Bettag said.

Children between the ages of 2 and 5 and their parents are eligible for attendance at the two Jacksonville institutes, while orophedically handicapped children from 2 to 7 and their parents are welcome at the Chicago institute. Parents of handicapped children under 2 years of age may attend any of the three institutes without their children, and special arrangements may be made for weekend attendance by parents unable to stay the whole period.

Bad Headlights No. 1 Cause For Rejections

Headlights headed the list of "casualties" at the traffic Safety Lane held last week on West Morgan street under supervision of the Jacksonville Police Department, with several cooperating organizations. Lights which had burned out or were out of focus were the No. 1 cause for rejection of cars which passed through the lane. Chief Ike Flynn said Tuesday in summing up results of the work.

Brakes which failed to hold evenly was the second major reason for rejection. Wheel alignment ranked third, with tires, horn, windshield wiper, glass and mufflers accounting for a few more rejections.

Young Singer At College Selected For Opera Chorus

Miss Sylvia Diane Anderson of 450 South York Street, Denver, Colorado, a student at MacMurray College, has been accepted as one of 20 young people in a chorus in the Central City, Colorado, opera this summer.

The chorus was chosen from Denver and surrounding area. Miss Anderson went to Kansas City to be auditioned.

Miss Anderson's employment for six weeks this summer indicates opera workshops and the actual production of operas. The season runs from June 30 to July 30, but her employment begins June 1.

Interpreting The News

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst
World War II was hardly over when three of its small victims — Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg — decided their futures lay in international cooperation.

They formed an organization, known as Benelux, to establish a customs union between them, and urged other Western European nations to join.

The other nations formed organizations of their own designed to do part of what the three small powers hoped Benelux would do for them. None of the organizations has been entirely successful in one of the world's most conservative business areas.

But none has entirely failed, and by gradual process Benelux actually seems to be approaching what seemed, 10 years ago, to be a hopelessly naive goal.

About the same time Benelux was getting started, two great French statesmen, Jean Monnet and Robert Schuman, Winston Churchill and the German, Adenauer, began to advocate even greater European unity.

The European Community for Coal and Steel was formed, with coordinated supranational controls and single market objectives. It has had its troubles, but it is now a going concern.

The international control body set up to handle coal and steel operates under safeguards against national finagling.

And it is moving into other fields.

Under its urging, the foreign ministers of the six countries involved — France, West Germany, Italy, and the three Benelux countries — are meeting this week to see if they can do much the same thing for atomic energy they have done for coal and steel.

They call the new project Euratom. Its to be a pool for research into the production of atomic power for peaceful purposes. It would cooperate but not interfere with national operations, nor with international organizations as proposed under the Eisenhower plan.

It is designed to permit the six countries to do in cooperation what they do not have the resources to do alone.

The project, however, has been tied in by its originators to the idea of European federation.

Following directly on the heels of the Euratom organization, if the conferences prove successful, will be a movement to establish a European customs union and a European single market.

Both movements will be tied to supranational authority through the Common Assembly set up for coal and steel. This body's members are appointed by individual governments, but work under a charter designed to force them to approach their decisions in a spirit of objective internationalism.

A few years ago the whole approach was considered fantastic. The obstacles, involving not only nationalism but also Europe's antiquated economic practices, are still gigantic.

But for the first time in centuries Europeans are working on these problems in an atmosphere of good will, as against the selfishness of the past, and things are moving at least a little.

experiences would be beneficial. So, the mothers with Mrs. Tracy as their leader met in the beginning as a study group. Their first subject was "Child Development", as Mrs. Tracy often observes, "Too many parents see only the deafness and not the child."

From this start the Clinic was organized in September, 1942. The Clinic serves parents and their pre-school children (deaf and hard of hearing), with emphasis on parent education. It offers teacher-training programs in conjunction with the University of Southern California. Research programs have also been started. A board of directors has now grown to 26 members.

Yeggs Fail To Open Foods Market Safe

Burglars made an unsuccessful attempt to chisel open a large safe at the Jacksonville Foods Super Market, 1417 S. Main street, sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

The combination knob of a large floor safe was knocked off. After accomplishing that much damage, the burglars either got jittery or gave it up as too tough a job.

Dart Terwache, manager, told Deputy Sheriff Albert Stevens that the entire lot of the burglary consisted of $1.50 in pennies taken from a glass jar on the counter.

The yeggs took their tools with them as they made their getaway, as nothing was found around the safe, which is located near the front of the store.

County officials said the burglar or burglars may have hidden in the big building, as the means of entrance was not determined. The intruders are believed to have left through a rear door.

where a door knob was found broken.
Several months ago the North Main store of Jacksonville Foods was burglarized, at which time a safe was hauled away, with a considerable amount of cash. The safe was later found in a field northeast of the city.

"Quick Facts about Housepower"

The average home today uses about three times as much electricity as it did 15 years ago. Many more kinds of electrical appliances are now in daily use and need more HOUSEPOWER. What's more, today's appliances work faster and better—and so use more power than earlier models. The electric utility companies have more than kept up with this increased demand and can supply your home with all the power you need. But four out of five homes are not wired to handle increased appliance and equipment loads. They suffer from low HOUSEPOWER.

These conditions cause low HOUSEPOWER:

1. Inadequate "service entrance." Inadequate service entrance capacity is the basic barrier to full HOUSEPOWER. To meet today's demand for electricity, you should have service entrance capacity of at least 100 amperes. This requires 3-wire service from the street. Also, sufficient fuses or circuit-breakers to accommodate all the necessary branch circuits.
2. Inadequate branch circuits. Using too many fixtures and appliances on the same circuit overloads it, and none of them get enough power. They work inefficiently. Motors may even burn out—making costly repairs necessary. If the overload is too great, the circuit's fuse will blow, or its circuit-breaker will trip. You should, therefore, have enough circuits to distribute electricity to all your appliances without any one circuit having to accommodate too many of them. Some appliances like ranges and clothes dryers need special circuits just for themselves.
3. Insufficient outlets. Some homeowners try to avoid this situation by using extension cords and "octopus" outlets (2- and 3-way plugs), or by plugging into lighting outlets. Such practices are unsightly and inconvenient and may be dangerous. Rearranging furniture to suit the location of outlets is, of course, no solution either. The only safe solution is to add more circuits and outlets.

These are the symptoms of low HOUSEPOWER:

- 1) lights dimming when appliances are turned on.
- 2) blown fuses or tripped circuit breakers.
- 3) TV picture shrinking when other appliances are turned on.
- 4) appliances working inefficiently.
- 5) irons, toasters, other heating appliances taking too long to heat up.

"If any of these symptoms are present in your home, you need a wiring check-up! Call your electric company or electrician. In most cases, you can get a wiring check-up without obligation. Adding the wiring necessary to give your home full HOUSEPOWER can often be done in a day; is not messy nor destructive to walls when done by a qualified electrician or electrical contractor. Remember, modernizing your wiring not only contributes to your comfort, but increases the value of your home, and equips it for appliances you may plan to buy in the next few years.

Girl Scout Notes

Many of the Girl Scouts in this area have taken part in a "fly-up" ceremony this past month. This ceremony is used to signify the Brownies' continuous membership in the Girl Scout organization. These former Brownies now have learned the Girl Scout Promise and Laws and are wearing the gold trefol pins of the Intermediate Scout. This trefol emblem points the way to brotherhood, friendliness, and good citizenship and bears a three-fold message that as these girls enter into a comradeship with other scouts they will have joy as they work together, play together, and seek together.

The girls of Troop No. 22 that were invested are Rebecca Sanders, Martha Sue Hoxey, Joyce Lasley, Judith Stoddard, Marcia Smith-Hewitt, Kay Chambers, Peggy Markille, Nancy Jo Davis, Cheryl Rose, Linda Brainer, Gloria Newlin and Sharon Farmer.

Mrs. Kay Watson entertained the girls of Troop No. 7 at her home for their Investiture ceremony. These girls were: Sara Lee Arenz, Karla Beddingfield, Benny Lee Beerup, Sandra Kay Boruff, Linda McAdams, Alicia Ina Parrott, Mary Profaizer, Linda Sue Reeve, Vivien Shepard, Kay Watson, Marcia Johnson, Shirlene Howard, Pearl Williams, and Carol Ann Prinzing.

Troop No. 6 and their leader, Mrs. Harold McCarty enjoyed a wiener roast from 4 until 7 last week at the Freeman farm three miles north of Jacksonville. There were 18 girls present and two other parents, Mrs. Godbey and Mrs. Al Pearce. This new Brownie troop enjoyed their fellowship together.

Mrs. Keith Hopper and her girls in Troop No. 46 visited the telephone office this past week and especially appreciated the kind and courteous attention they received. The girls found the tour very informative because everything was explained very thoroughly.

Brownie Troop No. 37 and their leaders, Mrs. Alde and Mrs. Chumley visited Rimbey's Greenhouse in Roodhouse. The owner of the greenhouse gave each Brownie a potted tomato plant which they are to take care of through the summer and he will give $1.00 to the Brownie that grows the largest tomato. Recently this troop hiked to the home of Mrs. Chumley and planted seeds. These girls are budding horticulturists.

The girls of Troop No. 63 are working hard on their indoor activities these past few weeks. They concluded some of their activities with a cook-out at Nichols park last week and this past Saturday night they enjoyed a campout at Camp Shagbark.

The Brownies of Troop No. 56 and Troop No. 32 enjoyed a cook-out at Camp Shagbark this past week. The girls practiced some of their newly learned outdoor skills and enjoyed the food and the sociality.

All Girl Scout Troops that want to march in the Memorial Day parade should be at the corner of Grace church one-half hour before the parade is to start. Wear uniforms. Each troop should be identified with placard.

Entertains Mothers
Troop No. 34 held a dessert party for their mothers on Tuesday evening, May 22 at 7:00 at the home of their leader, Mrs. Robert Hartman at 1040 West College avenue. This troop is composed of 10th, 8th, and 9th grade girls and is divided into three patrols. The Little Badgers, who had charge of table decorations and clean-up, the Hollyhocks in charge of the program; and "Los Amigos" in charge of the foods.

A short mock radio program was presented entitled "Our World Tomorrow," and the food was served from a table decorated with the flags of countries in the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts.

The mothers and daughters ate at card tables which were cleverly decorated with motifs of other countries. The evening was most successfully completed with a talk by Miss Hamshad Rahmin, a student from MacMurray College, who talked about Girl Guides in India, her native land, and her experiences in traveling to Australia, Switzerland, and all through India as a Ranger Guide.

Favors of potted verbena plants were given each guest.

Mrs. Gene Fawkes is the assistant leader of this group.

New Floor Care Ends Waxing

One of the difficult jobs of housekeeping is to wax linoleum and asphalt tile floors. Now, thanks to Glaxo, it's no longer necessary to wax and scrub; just apply Glaxo about twice a year. It maintains a high luster, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glaxo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run. Besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor.

DEFENSE BY CHANCE

MADISON, W. Va. (AP)—Circuit Judge K. K. Hall drew lots to determine what attorney would represent a man charged with the mutilation murder of a 47-year-old woman.

State law provides that the court designate legal counsel when a defendant has no funds. Judge Hall adopted the unprecedented procedure for Orlen Arnold Shaffer, 37, because all eight attorneys practicing in this county appeared reluctant to take the case.

District Governor Attends Altrusa's Fifth Anniversary

An international decorative theme provided very colorful table appointments Monday evening at the annual dinner meeting of the Altrusa club held at the Jacksonville Country Club. The occasion marked the fifth anniversary of the local women's service club.

The guest speaker Monday evening was Miss Marie Schimpfeler of Louisville, Kentucky, governor of the sixth district of which Jacksonville is a part. Miss Schimpfeler is the international relations committee chairman for Altrusa International.

The committee in charge of local arrangements and responsible for the international theme included Ethel Glascock, chairman, Louise Hagel, co-chairman and Kay Wicks. They were assisted by Miss Betty Farison.

Gay fiesta straw hats were at each place setting, the inverted crowns holding sauced nuts and mints. Blue tapers in bright hued floral arrangements lent further air of festivity to the table decorations. Mexican matadors with erotically fashioned bull figurines also added atmosphere to the table settings.

Before the dinner the assembly recited the Altrusaian grace, led by the president, Mrs. Alta Henry. A very good three-course dinner was served and during the dessert course a delightful musical was presented.

Miss Louise Hagel introduced two very talented MacMurray College students, Patricia Hickey and Phoebe Woodward, who accompanied by Professor Cleveland, sang solo and duet numbers in a most professional manner.

Miss Woodward sang, "Bless My Song," "The Kiss Me Waltz," and "The May Night." Miss Hickey sang, "The Kerry Dancers," and both young ladies presented two duets from a Mozart opera to conclude a rare musical treat.

Mrs. Henry opened the formal business session by having Altrusa's introduce their guests for the evening. There were several out-of-town members present from Bloomington and Springfield and from Pekin. Mrs. Frances King, formerly of this city who was a charter member of the local club.

Mrs. Henry asked three members of the now disbanded Nesco Office Employees club who were present to stand for recognition.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Anything can happen at Ebbets Field, as everybody knows.

There have been so many bizarre happenings on the bank of the Gowanus that the incredible Brooklyn fans have become immune to them. They hadn't been upset since Bobby Thomson of the Giants hit the memorable three-run home run to end the play-off of 1951, and that took place at the Polo Grounds.

But the Faithful just sat there in shocked astonishment while the Braves gave Clement Walter Labine his lumps the other night. They had become so accustomed to seeing the brave and fearless fireman walk out there and put out the blaze. At that, Clem Labine fanned two and would have escaped trouble had not Gil Hodges booted a tricky hopper off Danny O'Connell's bat.

Labine and his crew cut went into his 13th game of the young season with a record of 13 2/3 scoreless innings in eight relief appearances.

Throwing out his disastrous turn against the Milwaukee club, the rubber-armed Woonsocket men's sports wear designer had pitched 20 2/3 innings in 12 games, yielding 14 hits and 3 runs two of them earned for an earned-run average of 0.87. That's what you call a fire extinguisher. He struck out 17, walked only 1, won 3 games and saved as many more.

WALTER ALSTON IS shooting for the pot when he wiggles for Labine. Starting only four or five times last season and pitching only one complete game, the handsome Frenchman won 13 while losing 5 and saved as many more with an ERA of 3.25 in 60 outings.

You only have to go back to the World Series of last fall to get a rough idea of Labine's tremendous value to the Dodgers. He was in four of them, ending the first two with scoreless innings. He pitched the last 4 2/3 innings of the fourth game and won it, protected Roger Craig's lead pitching 3 innings of the fifth. He was in 3 Series games in 1953.

"Naturally, I preferred to be a starting pitcher," says Labine. "Every pitcher does, but I have fallen into the relief category. Someone has to relieve and that appears to be where I am most valuable. I am being paid enough, which is the main idea."

SOMEONE WAS telling Labine how Ellis Kinder, another famous rescuer, describes pitching.

"Pitching is like breaking a four-square window pane," said the veteran Kinder, now with the Cardinals. "You break a pane up there, one down there, the one on the upper left hand side and then the other one. You move the ball around."

"Well," said Labine, "you can tell the hitters that I'm not breaking any upper windows. I'm strictly a downstairs man. You can't make too many mistakes down below, making them hit the ball on the ground."

Labine, 29, does not have to resort to any trick pitch. He gets them out with a sinking fast ball and a sharp-breaking curve.

Labine, a paratrooper during World War II, says confidence is 90 percent of successful relief pitching.

And until the Braves waylaid him the other night, just to prove that he is only human, there was considerable evidence that Clem Labine had 90 per cent the best of the hitters.

Johnny Thomson Made Slight Favorite For 40th 500-Mile Classic

By WILL GRIMSLEY

INDIANAPOLIS — Johnny Thomson, a nervous New Englander with a "hot car," was made a slight favorite Tuesday for Wednesday's 40th 500-mile Speedway race, which should produce a record speed unless hampered by excessive heat or showers.

The Weather Bureau, harassed by three days of rain which placed Indianapolis on a flood alert, predicted temperatures of 86 degrees, high humidity and possibility of showers.

Forecasters said rainfall was likely to hold off until the end of the race, at about 3 p.m. (CST).

Speedway officials announced the race definitely would go on as scheduled at 10 a.m. (CST) although postponement was touch-and-go Monday after flash floods sent rivulets across the 2 1/2-mile asphalt and brick track. They dried quickly Tuesday under a warm sun.

Because of mud conditions, spectators were urged, however, to use public transportation, and, if possible, leave the family cars at home.

A crowd of more than 100,000 is expected to view the death-defying grind, the premier event of American automobile racing. There will be no television but details will be broadcast over the Speedway's special radio network of 271 stations in 45 states. Thirty-three high-powered cars, piloted by the country's greatest drivers, will be gunned at the 130.84 m.p.h. records set in 1954 by Bill Vukovich, killed while leading last year's race.

Killebrew Bats Senators To 6-5 Win Over Orioles

BALTIMORE — Harmon Killebrew got into the game by accident Tuesday and promptly socked two home runs for his first hits this season to propel the Washington Nationals to a 6-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The 19-year-old from Payette, Idaho, replaced second baseman Pete Runnels, who was spiked in the second.

In the next inning, up for only the 10th time this season, he smacked a homer with Eddie Yost on to put the Nationals ahead 2-0.

In the sixth, he hit the first pitch by Johnny Schmitz, third Oriole hurler, into the left field stands.

Killebrew, signed as Washington's first bonus player last season, got into 38 games last season. Although he batted only 200 he hit four homers.

The spike wound on Runnels' foot necessitated several stitches and he will be unable to play for several days.

At the annual drivers' dinner, the men behind the wheel favored Thomson as the driver most likely to succeed. He is driving a Schmidt special. This is the fourth try for the 37-year-old New Englander, who finished fifth last year.

The 10-mile qualifying record was set by Pats Flaherty of Chicago, who registered 146.056 m.p.h. in a John Zink special to gain the pole position. However, only five times in the past 39 races has the pole winner captured the prize.

Prediction of a new speed record came after 15 drivers in the 33-car field qualified at speeds above the previous Speedway trials record.

Sweikert, who zoomed to victory last year after the front-running Vukovich died in the flames of a four-car smashup, said he believed that under good conditions it would take an average speed of 136 m.p.h. to win.

Intense heat or rain could jeopardize the assault. In 1953 the heat was so intense that one driver died of heat prostration and seven others were hospitalized.

The semifinal round starts at 1:30 p.m. with Limestone of Peoria (11-11) facing Litchfield (18-3). The other afternoon game sends the upper bracket favorite, Charleston, (21-4) against Freeburg (16-6).

The evening round starts at 7 p.m. with Blue Island (11-3) meeting DuQuoin (21-3).

Unbeaten Gary Williams (9-0) will be DuQuoin's pitching choice to face Ed Kissel, (6-1).

Don Newcombe Stills Long's Home Run Bat And Pittsburgh 10-1

PITTSBURGH — Don Newcombe stilled Dale Long's booming home run bat and the Pittsburgh Pirates 10-1 Tuesday for his seventh victory of the season.

Long, who blasted eight home runs in eight straight games to set a new major league record, went hitless in four times at bat Tuesday.

Newcombe sewed up the contest in the second inning with a ringing bases loaded three-run double.

The Dodgers sprayed six Pirate hurriers for 14 hits, four of them for extra bases, and Randy Jackson, playing third, got three of the Dodgers' hits.

The Dodgers climbed on loser Ronnie Kline for four runs in the second, picked up single markers in the fourth and fifth and whacked out four more with a five hit spurge in the seventh.

Newcombe struck out six didn't walk a single Pirate and allowed only seven hits.

The loss snapped a four-game Pirate winning streak but did not hurt their third-place standing in the National League.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — A bag of 100 or more foxes is the boast of a trio of Champaign County farmers whose hunting operations represent a merger of two points of view about the animals.

One attitude is that the sly fox is a predator who takes a farmer's poultry and therefore should be exterminated, no matter what the means.

The other is that he picks off only uncared-for chickens and sick or weak upland game that would be pressed out of existence anyway.

The fox operates as a cog in nature's balanced machinery, according to their view, and should be utilized by hunting for him for sport.

Arthur Thomas of Seymour says he and Bill Bell recently decided to go after foxes that they thought were getting their chickens. Their bag of three foxes excited interest among others at the time. The others said they'd like to hunt fox.

"As of now, we've killed 100 or more foxes in an area of a few miles around Seymour," says Thomas.

Here's the method he outlines for the hunt:

"Get yourself a pair of good field glasses. Drive around the country roads in the afternoon when the sun is shining. When you spot a fox, get out and go up to it against the wind. A fox uses his nose—his sense of scent—more than anything else for his protection."

"Where you find a den, use flares or old rags to smoke out the foxes. Be sure to be ready as they emerge from such a hiding place."

Thomas, Bell and Jim Seymour are the trio that took the big bag. Thomas says he feels they cut the threat which they believed was growing against poultry and game in their area.

The State Conservation Department says it does not enumerate foxes and lacks evidence of any decided up or down.

Foxes may be hunted any time, without limit on numbers taken.

THE STORY OF MARTHA WAYNE

STEVE CANYON

By MILTON CANIFF

Fall Drifter

By W. Edmunds Claussen

Copyright 1956 by W. Edmunds Claussen. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Although Emmett
Lusk may be a horse thief,
he saved the life of Frank Lide,
who follows him to Cashtown.
There a number of people grow interested in Frank and why he is in town. Among them is Steve Norring, big boss of the town.

VII
The cook had let some fat
spill over the edge of his kettle.
It struck the stove and went into flames. The entire kitchen was a dimmy, built-on wooden affair that would soon burst into flame trapping Juan. The cook stood staring at the damage his carelessness had brought about. Then Frank leaped to his feet, swinging himself over the counter.

"You crazy old devil. You never did have as much grace as a bull after a cow. Let me get that blazing rag off your back!"
Frank had never seen his men react with the nervous backlash of Emmett's energy. He had noted indications of concealed alertness while they were on the horse drive; but there was a courage in Emmett now that had been lacking during the raiders' attack. He drove into the burning kitchen with a complete disregard for the danger, pulling down a soiled roller towel and twisting it about Juan's burning shirt. He had done this much before Frank was fully inside the kitchen.

"A sand bucket in the corner," Emmett flung across his shoulder. "Douse that stove, friend!"
Frank located the bucket and threw the sand into the flaming corner. The rolling layers of smoke and heat warned him he had better get out. He stumbled through the doorway, almost blinded by the smoke. By this time Emmett was unrolling the towel from Juan's chest and smothering the remaining fire with his hands. The hair had burned close on the top of the cook's scalp and both eyebrows were gone. His face became distorted in sudden panic. Still it seemed to Frank the burns were secondary in Juan's thoughts.

The whites of his eyes fairly shone as he yelled at Emmett,
"Why you come home?"

Emmett simply grinned. "Save your breath, Juan. You sure have become rattle-brained to get this careless!"

"Did you steal senorita's horses?"

"Of course not," Emmett's voice turned metallic.

The words had gone searing through Frank confirming his doubts of Emmett. Whose horses had Juan accused them of stealing? He had called them the senorita's horses, and he had also called Juan senorita. She was the one whose range apparently he was helping to delete.

"Emmett," Juan still pleaded,
"you should not come here!"

"Why not? It's my town," Emmett replied angrily.

PAIN from his blistered chest finally got into Juan. His head tipped against Emmett's shoulder, his knees gave away as he slumped forward. He sighed, only partly conscious with a queer look of peace coming suddenly to his face, "Si, senor. It is like it was in his time—when the patron was alive!"

Emmett became alarmed now.
He turned away from this, transferring the bulk of Juan's weight to Frank. On the walk toward men were hurrying toward them with pails from the community well. Already there was a steady missing of steam from inside the restaurant as their buckets were emptied through the alley windows. Frank shot a searching glance at Emmett. His gaze was roving the street and his hand had dropped close to his gun.

Hyman, the dark-clothed man from next door, ran up spilling water from his pail. His mouth curled in resentment as he recognized Emmett.

"What's the matter, can't you leave Juan alone?"

"Hyman," Emmett acknowledged without warmth, tossing his head toward the building.
"Hump along with your bucket before fire guts everything he's got."

In front of Dr. La Tour's porch Emmett leaped up the three boot-worn steps swinging the door open.

FRANK didn't know if it was Norring, who owned the Alhambira, that Emmett feared, or maybe the girl called Juan.

The sheriff had disappeared long ago, and maybe not knowing where he was had got under Emmett's skin.

He took the cook in his arms like a child and carried him to the porch. Dr. La Tour, met them in the hall. He was a tight-lipped man with white in his hair and red veins racing a network of lines together on his

Scott Graduates Hear Rev. William Skadden

WINCHESTER—The Rev. William E. Skadden, well-known lecturer associated with the Illinois Department of Public Welfare, was speaker at the annual commencement exercises of Winchester High School Monday evening.

Gehrig Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Robinson, and Arlene Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Little, were awarded the American Legion citizenship awards by L. Allan Watt of Julian Wells Post 442.

These awards are based upon outstanding qualities of leadership, scholarship, honor, courage and service.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Roy Goodell. Miss Angela Wilson played the processional and recessional.

County Presidents, Other Officers Will Convene June 12-15

More than 250 officers and members of the Illinois Home Bureau Federation will attend the 19th annual citizenship conference to be held June 12 through June 15 on the campus of MacMurray College.

This year it returns to Jacksonville, with many features planned for the large gathering.

Twelve years after Illinois Home Bureau Federation was organized in 1924, under the leadership of Mrs. Spencer Ewing, another inspired Illinois homemaker, Mrs. Elsie Mies, conceived the idea of a summer conference for all county presidents and vice presidents.
